SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, Sept. 28—British and American troops today in a sudden two-pronged drive ousted Nazis from Elst.

The city, north of Nijmegen and about halfway to Eindhoven, had been held as long as possible by the Germans who realized its strategic value as an effective block across the main line of Allied communications.

Occupancy of Elst was announced by an official spokesman at headquarters of Gen. Eisenhower who revealed that the Allies now are clearing Nazis from the area east of the city.

British forces are cooperating by striking northeast out of Bommel, 3½ miles northeast of Nijmegen, imperiling Nazi lines. The Germans fought back ferociously and a pitched battle is now underway, spokesmen said.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—Eight nations reached an agreement today to muster the might of practically all of the merchant fleets of the world against Japan at the end of the war in Europe.

This agreement between the world's leading maritime powers was announced by the state department in Washington. Signatories to the pact are the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada, Belgium, Greece, the Netherlands, Norway, and Poland.

Allied armies in the Netherlands and Northern Belgium lashed out today in what appeared to be a twin drive to wipe out German forces attempting to withdraw from positions between the Allied corridor through Holland and the sea.

British Second Army units fighting to expand their corridor north through the Netherlands from Eindhoven through Nijmegen and north toward the Lek river and Arnhem punched forward southwest of Nijmegen and south of OSS in an advance German sources claimed to be supported by new airborne landings.

At the same time Allied forces in Northern Belgium surged ahead along a line to the southwest, expected to be supported by new airborne landings.

WORKERS QUIT
C.I.O. IN BODY

Union Accused Of Being
Communist-Influenced Political Machine

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—Eighty-three employees of the Chicago Flexible Shaft Co. quit their membership in a body in a CIO union today and threatened injunction proceedings to enforce their demand that no more union dues be deducted from their wages.

The employees, 66 men and 17 women, served notice on the company yesterday that they were withdrawing from the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, Local 1150, and asked that the company cease deducting $1 monthly from their wages for dues.

They also wrote the union demanding that all monies they have paid the union be returned and that no further held out dues be accepted from the company. Refusal to comply, the letter said, would result in an injunction suit.

The CIO union, the workers charged, is a communist-influenced political machine which fraudulently collects dues by representing itself as a labor union.

Their action follows that taken by Harry Morgan, turret lathe operator, who clashed with the union last August. He was removed by the union as chief shop steward because, as he claimed, he had refused to distribute communist and New Deal propaganda literature.

He also claimed he had been suspended illegally from the union and he sued for the money he had paid to the union as dues.

RAILS SET FOR RECORD TRAVEL
FOLLOWING WAR

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28—R. B. White, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, predicted today that railroads would handle the bulk of the country's postwar passenger traffic in what he described would be "the greatest travel urge in American history."

Speaking before the Great Lakes regional advisory board and some 600 railroad and shipper representatives in Cleveland, White asserted that American railroads "as a whole are better prepared to face the future than they have been for many years."

Forecasting keen competition with the airplane industry and other modes of transportation, White said it "may be a blessing in disguise." "The competition," he said, "has had an important part in putting the railroads on the alert, and this alertness to postwar trends and prospects will doubtless prove a valuable asset."

OPA Says Increase Made Necessary Because Of
Drop In Production

OTHER FOOD UNCHANGED

Hope Voiced That Order
May Produce Increased
Civilian Supplies

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—War Food Administrator Marvin Jones today ended all rationing and distribution control of farm machinery and equipment except controls over corn pickers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—The Office of Price Administration today announced an increase in the ration value of creamy butter from 16 to 20 red points per pound, effective at 12:01 a. m. Sunday, October 1.

OPA said the higher point value was necessary due to an anticipated ten million pound cut in civilian butter supplies for October. The war food administration estimated that declining seasonal production would reduce civilian stocks from ninety-five million pounds in September to eighty-five million pounds in October.

At the same time, OPA also announced that present ration values for processed foods and all meats and dairy products, except creamy butter, will continue unchanged.

OPA Administrator Chester Bowles warned that the 20-point value—an all-time-high—would mean less butter for civilians "at least during the next 90 days or so." He said distribution might be spotty during the next two months, but expressed hope that the new ration order would produce increased civilian supplies.

Supply Short
Bowles' warning that "we simply don't have anywhere near the normal supply of butter to distribute," was underscored by the WFA report which disclosed that milk production remained steady, but creamy butter output dropped approximately 12 per cent under the similar 1943 period.

WALLACE AGAIN

GUNS ON DEWEY

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 28—Republican presidential nominee Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was under renewed attack today by Vice-President Henry A. Wallace on the soldier-vote issue.

Speaking at a testimonial in honor of J. David Stern, publisher of the Philadelphia Record, Wallace said: "It is easy for the soldier in Pennsylvania to vote, but it is hard for the New York soldier to vote." The Democratic party, he said, "is interested in both the right of soldiers to vote and the right of soldiers to jobs."

Earlier in nearby Chester Wallace told an audience of 2,500: "Our terrific war production was not achieved, as some Republicans think, by merely giving industry the green light. The system of the 1920's won't work—it led to disaster in 1929 and it will again."

PAC DESIGNS
HOT LETTERS

Canned Ideas Prepared For Use In Writing To
Editors Of Papers

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—Ever get the idea that you'd like to write a letter to the editor but never got past the first line—Dear Sir...?

Well, the CIO-Political Action Committee has the answer, including streamlined arguments, canned phrases and paragraphs of ammunition. Provided, that is, if you think as they do.

The Political Action Committee, through its subsidiary, or legal offspring, the National Citizens Political Action Committee, issues a weekly bulletin entitled "Write Today."

The four-page publication is designed to help its readers to prepare scorching letters to the editor in case they didn't know what they wanted to say, or possibly, hadn't intended to write.

This week's number, out today, is concerned with Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican vice presidential candidate. It opens with the assertion that "this week, 'Write Today' brings you a close-up of Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, Dewey's running mate." It heads the whole thing: "Looking backward with Bricker."

"You can't laugh off the second man on the ticket," says the Political Action Committee. Not as you could, it adds, "in the days of John Nance Garner and Charles Curtis," lumping together the only men who lasted two terms with President Roosevelt and his Republican predecessor.

The booklet then goes on to quote from Gov. Bricker with what it feels are indictments of his beliefs. Following are some:

"The time has come to support the millions of workers who want to work and to quit dodging selfish labor leaders for the sake of votes they say they can deliver at an election."

"I am against federal housing... private business can... deal fully with slum clearance if given the opportunity."

"The trend (toward socialized medicine) in America today is the backward and pickup of trends in foreign lands and tends to minimize the importance of the individual. This trend, if it continues, will mean the end of free government and will be a force to destroy civilization."

"The government should not compete with its own citizens." There's more in a similar vein, but the Political Action Committee obviously feels that any one of these quotations is enough to queer Gov. Bricker with the voters and provide a trenchant closing paragraph for that sizzling letter to the editor.

There is only one odd thing about the bulletin, however. Al-

28 SPEECHES ON SIX DAY SLATE
FOR BRICKER

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, Republican vice presidential nominee, will make at least 28 speeches during the first six days of his forthcoming campaign tour, it was announced today.

The tour, starting in the Midwest, eventually will take the candidate to the Pacific coast states and will cover 9,250 miles in a four-week period.

His speeches during the first six days will range from 14 short talks from the rear platform of his special train to a nationally-broadcast radio address originating in St. Louis the night of Oct. 4.

First speech of the trip will be the rear-platform address at Lebanon Junction, Ky., Oct. 2.

Gov. Bricker's itinerary will take him through Kentucky and into Tennessee, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota, from where he will head for the west coast.

While in St. Louis, he will attend the opening game of the World Series.

SALEM, Ore., Sept. 28—Suspension of beef and veal rationing was sought today by the newly organized Western Agricultural Commissions and Directors' Association. Five state agriculture directors are members.

E. L. Peterson, Oregon agriculture director and president of the group, told Marvin Jones, War Food Administrator, that "present live cattle numbers are sufficient if converted into a maximum amount of meat to permit the removal of rationing and at the same time supply government requirements."

GUERRILLAS IN GREECE TO TAKE
ALLIED ORDERS

ROME, Sept. 28—Two Greek guerrilla generals agreed today at a military conference presided over by Allied commander Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson to operate under orders of the supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean and recognize the Greek government of President Papandreu.

The decision of the guerrilla leaders, Generals Sarafis and Zervas, aided in the coordination of the struggle for the speedy liberation of Greece and the maintenance of complete order in that country.

OAKS REACHES
NEAR ACCORD

"Encouraging Agreement"
Reported In First Phase
Of Post-War Conference

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—The first phase of the Dumbarton Oaks conference, which has already dragged out to twice its expected length, came to an end today with a plenary session of all the American, British and Russian delegates, after "encouraging agreement" had been reached on a plan for postwar security.

There was no effort to conceal, however, that full agreement had not been reached. President Roosevelt described it as a ninety per cent agreement. The remaining ten percent was understood to be on the basic question of how to apply force in putting down future threats to world peace.

It was this controversial question which drew out the discussions from an expected three weeks to almost six weeks.

In the face of this delay, the next phase of the conference, involving the Chinese delegation, was being hurried along. It is scheduled to begin tomorrow, within an hour or two after recess in the afternoon.

The Chinese delegation, headed by Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese ambassador to London, has been cooling its heels in Washington for nearly a month. In deference to the wishes of Russia, the delegates were barred from the first phase of the conference.

But every effort is being made by British and American officials to stage this second act of the international drama with the same éclat as the first. The same formal ceremonies will be held, including an address of welcome by Secretary of State Hull, and public reporting of the opening addresses.

Thereafter, the delegates will go into private conference, protected from the public by military guards. They will start with the document already agreed on by the British, Russian and American delegations, and will consider the changes desired by the Chinese.

The question which remained unsettled at the close of the first phase was whether a nation which is party to a dispute should be denied the right to vote in the council of the new league.

The British and American delegates are understood to have favored excluding such a nation from voting, while the Russian delegates insisted that the right to vote should not be denied to a nation which has been attacked.

British Nip
Nazi Plans
Of Invasion

Tale Finally Told Of How Airmen Bailed Start Of Thrust At England

LONDON, Sept. 28—The full account of how the RAF smashed Nazi plans for invading England in 1940, destroying German troop-carrying barge concentrations as they were about to put to sea, and thwarting the invasion attempt before the Germans could embark any armored forces for the assault can be told today.

Contrary to wide-spread rumors, it is understood that an actual invasion effort never was launched. Ceaseless RAF bombing shattered invasion concentrations along the continental coast from France to the hook of Holland before the Nazis could get started.

Grandiose German plans, which would in all probability have knocked England out of the war if they could have been carried into effect, consisted of two invasion schemes.

Two Hun Plans

The German plan "A" provided for a heavy blow designed to knock out British naval forces at the eastern end of the English channel with an all out surface assault employing everything the Germans had from E-boats to pocket battleships. Simultaneously, the Nazis planned to drive an invasion armada across the channel and into Weymouth.

From that port they envisioned a land drive through to the Bristol channel, cutting off the vital counties of Cornwall, Somerset and Devon from the rest of England.

The Nazi plan "B" was scheduled for September, 1940. It would have placed an infantry and armored invasion force ashore in England on the Norfolk coast, landing wehrmacht units in assault boats driven right up onto the shore—much as the Allies invaded Normandy — for a slash across England to Liverpool.

Would Divide Country

This planned drive to cut England in two was timed to take advantage of calm weather, permitting small craft operation in the North sea, and to land invasion forces before Autumn rains made a bog of the Norfolk soil.

At no time, according to present information, did the Nazis plan to crack through the British south-east coast.

But the two Nazi invasion plans could have succeeded. England's home defenses after Dunkerque consisted of shattered army units armed with rifles, and almost no artillery, supplemented by home guard forces armed with assorted firearms and pikes.

RAF reconnaissance planes brought word of concentrations of German shipping, coast craft and troop carrying barges, and the RAF threw everything it had into the aerial strikes which blasted (Continued on Page Two)

WAR MAY LAST
INTO 1945, SAYS
PRIME MINISTER

Commons Told Allies Have
Two To Three Million Men
In European Field

AMERICANS WIN PRAISE

Enormous Additional Yank
Forces Ready If Needed,
Leader Declares

LONDON, Sept. 28—The Allies already have between two and three million men on the European battlefield, but unless organized German resistance collapses speedily, "enormous additional American forces" will be hurled against the Reich, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the house of commons today.

In a long and ringing war report that eloquently praised American and British military leadership, courage and planning, Churchill disclosed that since D-Day the Germans have lost about 900,000 men—four times the casualties suffered by the Allies in liberation of France, Belgium and Holland.

"These were the principal points of his address:

1.—The seven weeks since invasion day "have changed the whole face of the conflict in Europe."

2.—The war may yet end in 1944, but there is no guarantee that several months of combat in 1945 will not be required.

3.—Hitler and his "gang" may be expected to wage guerrilla warfare after organized resistance is broken.

4.—Great Britain stands by her pledge to prosecute the war against Japan "with utmost energy."

5.—Allied casualties—as against the 900,000 German losses—approximately 235,000 men killed wounded or missing, with 145,000 of this number Americans.

"The great flow of well-trained United States divisions from across the Atlantic will step by step carry the Americans into the leading position against Germany," Churchill said.

Stalemate Denied
The prime minister's report encompassed the whole global conflict and he vigorously denied allegations that Britain's campaign in Burma is either a stalemate or a failure.

But most of his address dealt with the war in Europe, the courage of officers and men and the triumphs of logistics which enabled amazing things to be done in an unusually short space of time. Churchill deprecated premature expectations of an immediate ending of the war, saying that many with the highest qualifications hold good hopes that the conflict in Europe will end in 1944 but pointed out, to the contrary, that there is no guarantee that several months of combat in 1945 will be required.

Accord At Quebec

The prime minister said that at his Quebec conference with President Roosevelt complete agreement was reached on every point. It was decided there that there should be no changes in the chiefs of staff charged with the conduct of the war.

President Roosevelt, he revealed, cordially accepted the offer of the British fleet in the major operation against Japan, and declared that a large portion of the fleet already was in the Indian ocean. There will be a severe, intense, prolonged and ever-increasing air bombardment of Japan, he promised.

British perseverance in this quarrel cannot be doubted, he said.

Greatest Battle
Churchill dubbed the battle of Normandy the greatest and most decisive single battle of the entire war.

"Never has the exploitation of victory been carried to a higher profession," he said. "The indescribable chaos and destruction wrought by Allied air forces behind the battle front reduces to petty dimensions all that our army had to suffer from the German air force in 1940."

WAR MAY LAST INTO 1945, SAYS PRIME MINISTER

Commons Told Allies Have Two To Three Million Men In European Field

The American armies in France and to the lightning advances by British and Canadian forces and received resounding cheers when he spoke of the men of Arnhem. He said:

"The house cheered loudly when Churchill said everyone would welcome the decision of the government that a Jewish brigade group be formed to take active part in operations."

"It seems indeed appropriate," he said, "that that race which suffered indescribable torment from the Nazis should be represented as a distinct formation among the forces gathered for their final overthrow."

Hon. Dorn Certain
Although not seeking to minimize the difficult task ahead of the Allied forces in Italy, Churchill suggested that from here out conditions would be more favorable for the destruction of Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's troops.

Turning to the invasion of Europe, the prime minister revealed that in the first 24 hours of the landings in France 250,000 troops were sent ashore, while up to the 20th day after D-day a million men had been landed.

There now are between one million and three million Allied troops in France, he said.

Tribute was paid to the United States armies "not only for their valiant and ruthless battleworthiness but for the skill of their commanders and the excellence of their supply arrangements" as well as to the generous measure of the assistance which the U. S. is giving all fighting Allies and the mighty war the Americans are conducting in the Pacific.

Salute For Yanks
"This house," Churchill continued, "may indeed salute our sister nation as being at the highest pinnacle of her power and fame."

Churchill was somewhat critical of "many important organs of United States opinion which seemed to give the impression that the British campaign in Burma of 1944 has been a failure or at least a stalemate."

The British 14th army under Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten standing along India's frontier is composed of up to 300,000 men, he said. Ten Japanese divisions whose objective was to invade India have been repulsed and largely shattered in fighting "which still is continuing despite monsoons."

Up to the 30th of June, he disclosed, the British suffered more than 40,000 battle casualties and between 50,000 and 60,000 Japanese had been slaughtered. He added that a renewal of the Japanese offensive could be expected after the monsoon.

"It is a startling fact that the campaign of Lord Louis Mountbatten constitutes the largest and most important ground fighting which has yet taken place against the armies of Japan," he said.

"I can give the house this assurance that the war against the Japanese and other diseases of the jungle will be pressed forward with the utmost energy."

A "cold moon" is when the moon is far to the north, and many people then suppose it to be a sign of cold weather. There probably is no relation, however, between the weather and the apparent position of the moon.

WHAT TO SEND—WHERE TO SEND IT

THE ZERO HOUR for sending Christmas gifts to men and women of our fighting forces in every section of the globe fast approaches. It is presumed that by this time the importance of careful wrapping and extra-special care in addressing have been sufficiently impressed and standardized boxes are on the market. But what to send and where to send it? The Army and Navy have given a list of suggestions and these are indicated numerically above. Locate on the map the area to which a package is to be sent and then note the official suggestions which are:

1 EUROPEAN THEATRE—American roast coffee and vacuum-type coffee makers; canned sandwich-making materials; clothing, like underwear, because extras are hard to get; cameras and film.

2 MIDDLE EAST—American dollar bills, wool swimming trunks, leather travel kits, brown civilian-type shoes; no perishable items.

3 PERSIAN GULF—Large-sized billfolds for large Iranian money; leather or fabric wrist-watch straps; hair oil, mouth wash and face lotion; bottle openers and can openers; tee shirts; sun glasses; moisture-proof cigarette cases; bowl or stick shaving cream.

4 CHINA-BURMA-INDIA—A special request from here seems to be for highest quality razor blades (something to do with humidity, apparently); sun glasses also wanted.

5 SOUTH PACIFIC—Lighters, flashlights, sun glasses; highly seasoned snack foods for beer parties; radios; watches (very scarce and highly valued).

6 PANAMA—Money; golf and tennis balls, other athletic equipment; playing cards of good quality; musical instruments.

7 ALASKA AND ALEUTIANS—Radios, pipe tobacco, hunting knives, fishing equipment, leather craft and metal working outfits.

8 HAWAII—Money belts, shoeshine kits, khaki ties and socks, toilet articles, lighters, pipes and tobacco, swim trunks, flashlights.

9 GREENLAND AND ICELAND—Lighters, pipes and tobacco, toilet articles, flashlights, fountain pens, watches.

BUTTER RATION VALUE HOISTED TO 20 POINTS

OPA Says Increase Made Necessary Because Of Drop In Production

that butter output was expected to increase in December and January toward the Spring and early Summer peak.

The agency also compared estimated civilian supplies of rationed fats and oils and dairy products for October and September as follows:

Farm butter, twenty-five million pounds vs. twenty-six million pounds in September; margarine, fifty and a half million pounds, no change; all cheeses, fifty-three million pounds vs. fifty-two million pounds; evaporated milk, 125 million pounds, no change; condensed milk, five million pounds vs. three and a half million pounds.

On the rationed meat situation, OPA said that changes in the overall supply "are not great enough to warrant" revision of point values. OPA estimated the civilian meat supply for October at 272,390,000 pounds per week, compared with 284,120,000 pounds in September, a decline of about four per cent.

OPA also reported "no important" changes in the supply of processed foods since Sept. 17 when point values for processed fruits and juices, canned tomatoes, catsup and chili were announced.

CONTROLS SAVE FUEL IN CLEVELAND—With four apartment houses under construction Cleveland is pacing the country in installation of new heating controls, originally designed for post-war use. The controls, permitting each tenant to select his own temperature preference, were said to average fuel savings of 18 per cent.

Most of the wounded Americans are airmen and receive frequent visits from Swiss representatives of the International Red Cross, it was reported.

Bits on Books

By Enid Denham

"The Forgotten Finca," by Christine Von Hagen is a beautifully written story of Panama and a little family in search of a home; father, who had been discouraged because he lost everything in a landslide, and little Olmedo, the baby, was so ill. Their pride forbade them to accept charity, but who could resist the lure of the finca with its laden coffee trees and the clearing where vegetables could grow. And so Elvira and their new neighbor, Jacinto, planned and worked together, keeping their plans a secret, dreaming about them at night, wondering if somehow the owner of the deserted finca might not return. After all he had not come back for seven years. How Elvira realizes her fondest hopes makes an interesting tale fresh with bits of local color, giving insight into the ways of life of a little known country, its vegetation, climate, produce, and above all—its natives.

Marguerite de Angeli, who has written so many charming books of the Pennsylvania Dutch, French Canadians, Polish, and Amish of Pennsylvania has written another book for children about childhood among the Amish, the sturdy group of folk who dress and live so plainly yet so wholeheartedly. The story is called "Yonie Wondernose." Yonie, like the "Elephant's Child" of Kipling had an insatiable curiosity. Always he wanted to find out things or to "look once yet," sometimes getting burned, sometimes getting into trouble, but by no means getting cured of the habits. But when little Yonie had real responsibility and real danger to face, he proved he could be depended upon and so earned the very special promise that his father had made him. Beautifully illustrated, simply told, a book that will enrich our children's understanding. For grade one through four.

"What Manner of Man" by Noel Busch is an amazing book on the president. Mr. Busch explains many of the presidential characteristics, his likes and dislikes, his choice of friends, and his reasons for throwing some of his closest associates to the anti-anti deal wolves, a method Mr. Busch deprecates as advantageous only to the driver. Mr. Busch names names, explains their strange inclusion in Roosevelt's so called "kitchen cabinet." He goes back to the president's boyhood, to his Groton days, to his great love of crises of any sort, his political career through his post of assistant-secretary of the navy, perhaps because he liked ships, perhaps because he rounded up a clique of 200 to howl for Wilson at the Baltimore convention. Any way it was a job in Washington and though there was a better job elsewhere, also a political, likewise involving ships, we know how he likes Washington. Once when Roosevelt was asked how he managed to survive the strain of presidency, (and he had then only two terms,) he replied that "once he had spent two years lying in bed trying to move his big toe . . . After that anything seems easy." Busch goes on to say that after Roosevelt's illness and his subsequent crippling of his lower limbs, his thinking capacity was enlarged. Whether it was in the right direction is a matter of opinion. Also that the doctors assuming that a result of the disease might be a general depression set out to build up Roosevelt's ego, already in excellent shape. Besides his explanation of the Roosevelt character, Mr. Busch explains why we are run by Mr. Roosevelt, begin-

DESTRUCTION OF 100,000 NAZIS AIM OF BATTLE

Twin Push Directed At Germans Moving Out Of Holland Area

More Air Troops?

The Nazi DNB Agency reported that Allied airborne reinforcements were landed during the day along the highway connecting Nijmegen with Bois-Le-Duc, and added that heavy fighting centered about the Bois-Le-Duc Eindhoven railroad.

The twin Allied drives seemed to be aimed at smashing a reported move in which German forces, estimated 100,000 strong, were attempting to withdraw north and east through the 25-mile gap between Arnhem and the Zuider Zee to avoid being isolated by an expected Allied all-out offensive against the northern end of the Siegfried line.

Allied bombers continued hammering blows against the Nazi holdout garrison in the port of Calais, adding their bombs to the 1,500 tons of explosives dished on German positions there yesterday.

Germans Blasted

Other planes blasted German targets throughout the Netherlands in support of ground action while night flying Lancasters lashed savagely at industrial targets in Kaiserlautern, 40 miles northwest of Saarbrücken.

On the southern front Mustang planes of the Balkans air force pounded German targets in the Balkans in a daylong assault while Beaufighters, cooperating with Marshal Tito, attacked German strongholds at Banja Luka and Bosma.

On the Russian front, Soviet Baltic forces were reported with in sight of Riga as four Russian armies converged on the last major Baltic port in German hands.

Reds Forge Ahead

Red Army forces drove ever nearer the doomed Latvian capital in bloody fighting which took heavy toll of German manpower and war equipment while German and Hungarian sources reported that Russian troops in the south had crushed 14 miles inside Hungary to seize the towns of Mako and Foldsek in their drive to knock the last Axis satellite state out of the war.

There was no Russian confirmation of the Axis claims of Russian successes in Hungary.

Pacific war news saw air power dominating the entire theatre of war with Allied planes sweeping the Southwest Pacific area from the Philippines to the Solomons in continued, relentless assaults designed to smash Japanese military strength on widespread island bases.

A surprise raid struck deep into Jap-held Netherlands India territory when U. S. planes from Australian bases raided Batavia, on Java.

The savage neutralization assaults against Jap air bases in the northern Celebes, the Moluccas and at Halmahera continued, and the unremitting war against Jap shipping saw far-ranging planes destroy a 3,000-ton tanker, two

British Nip Nazi Plans Of Invasion

the invasion attempt out of existence before it could be launched.

Planes Save England

Flying the latest planes, and antedated clunkers, British bombers ran the gantlet of Nazi flak and night fighters to launch blow after blow at shipping concentrations along the invasion coast.

Wherever the German high command concentrated shipping, British flyers ploughed through all opposition to blast the concentrations to nothing.

The main concentrations of Nazi invasion shipping were held at Rotterdam, Antwerp, and the inlet of the Scheldt river, along with the other favorable ports in Belgium and Holland. But no part along the channel from the lowlands south to Brittany was without a collection of barges and shallow draft vessels rehearsing for invasion.

At Brest 50 invasion craft were gathered, at Boulogne there were 200 more, 600 to 700 at the hook of Holland, 250 at Flushing, 300 at Dunkerque, and some 800 at Rotterdam.

Lose 25,000 Men

British bombing attacks smashed these ship concentrations, taking a heavy toll of German soldiers. Conservative estimates say that the Nazis lost 25,000 men during these attacks, and some estimates put the total German loss at 60,000. Only Hitler knows the truth.

Whatever the German casualties, bodies of Nazi soldiers strewn the British channel coast after the RAF attacks, and the invasion of England never grew into anything more than a Nazi dream.

1,000 tons supply ships, and many smaller coastal craft.

News from the invasion front in Albania was blacked out.

Keeping American Homes Intact

We're great home lovers in our town. Family folk—like most Americans. So when war came, and the boys left in uniform, and the girls went into war plants, folks began to shake their heads.

Take Ben Ryder's family, for instance—all doing something different. Young Ben's in the Navy, and his sister's in the air-plane plant. Ben's foreman at the tool shop, and Ma spends her days at the Canteen.

A broken home? Don't you believe it! When Ben relaxes with his evening glass of beer, and ties, bodies of Nazi soldiers strewn the British channel coast after the RAF attacks, and the invasion of England never grew into anything more than a Nazi dream.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisons waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning—sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. ## CRASHING RED LIGHT BLAMED FOR TRAGEDY

Witnesses Tell How Four Met Death In Collision At State Capital

Crashing of a red light was believed Thursday to have caused the accident in Columbus early Wednesday which was fatal to four persons, including a Stoutsville resident and a former Circleville woman.

Witnesses said at a coroner's inquest that the passenger auto driven by Elmer Hicks, 29, of 931 City Park avenue, Columbus, went through a red light just before it was hit by an eight-ton fire department truck. Mr. Hicks, his wife, Virginia, 23, former Circleville resident, Mrs. Alice Reichelderfer Thompson, 22, Stoutsville, and Capt. Charles Eckstrom, 49, of the Columbus fire department, were fatally injured in the collision.

Pvt. Melvin D. Thompson, Circleville, is in critical condition in Fort Hayes post hospital as the result of a severe cerebral concussion suffered in the crash. Two Columbus firemen also were injured.

Double funeral services for Mr. and Mrs. Hicks will be held at 10 a. m. Saturday at the Gossnell funeral home in Columbus. Burial will be in Forest cemetery, Circleville.

They are survived by four children, Caroline Joyce, 5, Larry Martin, 4, David Elmer, 2, and Norman James, four months. Mrs. Hicks is also survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cosgrove; four brothers and four sisters. Also surviving Mr. Hicks are his father, George Hicks, Circleville, and three brothers and six sisters.

Funeral for Mrs. Thompson will be held at 2 p. m. Monday in the Stoutsville Evangelical church, Rev. Harold Dutt and Rev. Calvin Moorehead officiating. Burial will be in Maple Hill cemetery. Friends may call at the Crites and Van Cleave funeral home in Amanda from noon Friday until 6 p. m. ## Terracing Increases Yields Terracing to control erosion and conserve moisture is being used extensively on American farms to help produce more and better food and fiber for war, according to the War Food Administration. Supplemented by the best possible cropping practices, higher yields over a period of years will be produced from terraced fields, compared with unterraced land, and in many cases crop production will be made possible by this practice where it had previously failed.

Terraces are earth ridges or interlocking channels built approximately on the contour from the soil of the field. Their purpose is to reduce the speed and volume of water as it flows down the slope of the land. Properly built, they break a long slope into numerous short slopes. As water accumulates in the channel above the embankment it is conducted slowly off the field into a properly prepared terrace outlet. No terrace system is considered usable until stabilized natural outlet channels are available to receive excess water in safety, says WFA, and failure to maintain such outlets, after they have been constructed, may cause serious trouble.

Channels are spaced so as to intercept the water before it attains erosive speed, the terraces being closer together as the slope becomes steeper. Different types of terraces provide different types of protection, and the system used will depend upon the type of soil, the degree of slope of the land, and the amount of water to be handled. Terraces for erosion control are surface-drainage channels spaced at intervals across the slope, and at right angles to the flow of water down the hillside. It is pointed out that while terraces do not completely stop the movement of soil, they slow it up by slowing the speed of run-off water. This allows a major portion of the fertile topsoil to be dropped.

Soil-improving crop rotations, strip-cropping, cover crops to help hold the soil, and contour tillage are important to the success of a terraced field, says WFA. In addition, repairs to outlets or terraces should be made immediately they are needed. When properly used, terraces can increase soil losses instead of doing their valuable job as soil conservers.

Terracing is the most widely used corrective for soil washing in the Cotton Belt, reports show, and excellent results have been recorded in increased production on terraced fields. Over a 12-year period, an unterraced field in Texas, farmed up and down the hill, produced about 110 pounds of lint cotton per acre compared with about 175 pounds taken from a similar field that had been level-terraced and farmed on the contour. On this basis, 160 acres would have to be farmed under the old method to produce the cotton grown on 100 acres of terraced land.

Under the conservation program administered by the Agricultural Adjustment Agency, assistance is available to farmers in most States for construction of standard terraces with proper outlets, protected against erosion.

KANSAS CITY.—Fred Toati, driver of a sound truck used in campaigning for war workers, found the appeal so irresistible that he quit his job, walked to the U. S. Employment Service office and signed up for work in Alaska.

LOCAL SOLDIER SEEING SERVICE ON LEDO ROAD

Charles D. Sowers, stationed in the China-Burma-India theatre of operations for the last 20 months, has been promoted to technician 4th grade (sergeant), according to an announcement by the public relations office of the Services of Supply division of the U. S. Army Airforce.

Sowers, whose wife lives at 355 East Corwin street, was employed by the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad before entering the Army. He is now assigned to a combat engineer unit along the Ledo road, supply life line which Brigadier General Lewis A. Pick's service troops are forging across the mountains of North Burma. He is authorized to wear the good conduct medal and the Asiatic-Pacific ribbon with bronze clasp.

Before being transferred to the CBI theatre, Sowers spent four months with Army engineers in Canada.

PROBE ORDERED IN DEATH OF SISTER AIMEE

World Famed Evangelist Dies Suddenly In Los Angeles Hotel

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 28.—An autopsy was ordered performed today on the body of Aimee Semple McPherson, world renowned evangelist who died suddenly in an Oakland hotel suite while in a deep sleep apparently induced by a powerful sleeping drug.

The post mortem examination was ordered by Coroner Earl L. Emerson of Alameda county after authorities discovered a bottle of capsules of the drug in a traveling kit beside Mrs. McPherson's bed.

The dynamic 53-year-old evangelist's traveling companions and her son, Rolf McPherson, said they knew she had been taking the capsules, but her doctor at Los Angeles said he had not prescribed the drug.

"I thought I had broken her of the habit of taking such things," the physician added.

"Sister Aimee," as she was affectionately called by her thousands of followers in the Four Square Gospel church, was found in a dying condition shortly before noon yesterday by her son, who had accompanied his mother to Oakland from Los Angeles to dedicate another temple of her church.

Found Near Death
"Mother was still alive but breathing heavily when I entered the room," Rolf told police. "I went into the room about 11 o'clock. I couldn't arouse her. It was about an hour before I could get a doctor."

Two physicians, Dr. B. M. Palmer and Dr. Norman Leet, responded to Rolf's frantic summons, relayed through the hotel switchboard.

Dr. Palmer, first to arrive, observed the seriousness of Mrs. McPherson's condition and placed an emergency call for the fire department's inhalator squad, which arrived at the hotel with Dr. Leet. "When we got there," said fireman William Johnson of the inhalator squad, "Mrs. McPherson was lying on the bed. The doctor was working over her."

"Doctor Leet turned to us and said he thought there would be no need for us to go to work. Then Doctor Palmer placed his stethoscope over Mrs. McPherson's heart. He said he could detect no heart beat. I checked her pulse myself, but could detect none."

Drug Prompts Probe
The doctors said death was due to heart failure, but because of the presence of sleeping capsules beside the bed an autopsy was ordered by the coroner.

Funeral arrangements for the famed evangelist were held in abeyance pending the findings of autopsy surgeons and the arrival of her attorney from Los Angeles. Meanwhile, her son Rolf stood by to take over his famous mother's work and possessions.

"Sister Aimee's" career was spectacular and sometimes sensational. In the church and in private life as well. To her multitudinous followers, who jammed her Los Angeles church nightly and thronged her 400 churches in the United States and her 200 missions in foreign countries, she was a spiritual leader worshipped almost slavishly.

The ill in mind and body who believed in her regarded "Sister Aimee" as a miracle worker. In her huge Los Angeles temple stand long glass cases exhibiting crutches, braces, wheel chairs and canes which her converts discarded as they walked out of her services after apparently being healed in the intense fervor of her preachings.

But Mrs. McPherson never claimed to be a healer. "Jesus is the healer," she would say, "and I

'Don't Do It Again'

AN ADMONISHING finger is waved at "Spike" by Arnold Suter, 15, of Pittsburgh, Pa. The pup wandered away from Arnold, was hit by an auto, and fell down a sewer drain. His master crawled 225 feet through the sewer before reaching the dog and then got stuck himself. Another lad finally rescued both Arnold and Spike. (International) am but the office girl who opens the door and says 'come in.'"

Aside from her religious brilliance, showmanship and leadership, Mrs. McPherson was a front page personality on more than one occasion in fields not connected with evangelism.

Thrice married, she preached and wrote with startling candor on her private life. The climactic news highlight of her life, however, came in 1926 when she walked out into the ocean surf at Venice, Cal., and disappeared utterly and completely, only to turn up several weeks later, disheveled, worn and tattered, at a tiny community called La Prieta on the Arizona-Mexican border.

To authorities who found the vibrant and still beautiful evangelist, she babbled a story of having been kidnapped by a mysterious gang headed by "Rose" and "Steve." Her strange tale was never proved nor disproved and neither "Rose" nor "Steve" was ever located.

FUTURE WAGES

WAGES have been held down rather effectively during this war, as compared with the last one. It has been accomplished by government control, operating through war-time powers. What will happen when the war ends?

A rather natural assumption would be that wages will go lower. It was so at first, after the last war, when a period of idleness developed, and workers were driven to accept whatever they could get. But there are new factors involved now.

One such factor is that wage workers are now organized to a far greater degree than ever before, and thus have more power to control their wages. Another is that the government itself is committed to sustaining wages, and the candidates for the coming election seem agreed on that point.

But, many people will ask, how can wages be sustained, or raised at will, if general idleness develops again? The answer is probably somewhat like this—that whichever party is in power dare not let wages fall, and governmental powers will exist, or will be created, to sustain them, with the approval of Congress, and as part of planned economy.

NAZIS AND SEMITES

ECONOMICALLY and racially the Germans are going to face very unwelcome conditions when this war is over and penalties are imposed. Some of them have not been much discussed, because the Hitler outfit has never faced the possibilities and other nations have been too busy licking the gang.

The Jews, for example, will be restored to freedom, independence and opportunity. Their captivity and persecution will be over; and whether in their previous homes, or in Palestine, they will be free again to live in decency and international respect, while the venomous Nazi Germans will be paying their penalties.

It will be like the end of the Babylon captivity, as told in the Hebrew Scriptures. It may even develop that Jews will sit side by side with Christians and members of other religious faiths, in assigning punishment to the principal Nazi offenders against civilization. Doubtless many Christian ministers would approve of that.

Nobody seems to have asked Gov. Dewey yet how he stands on the spinach problem, and a lad next door would like to know.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—If you probe carefully into his life you begin to see why John Foster Dulles, in the spring of 1939, was still defending the dictator nations. It was a very human mistake. Almost anyone else in his shoes—and there were others—would have made it.

For more than ten years, Dulles and his law firm, Sullivan and Cromwell, had been trying to salvage some of the cash which American investors, big and little, had poured like a golden harvest into Germany. In fact, Dulles at various times was on both ends of the European bonds fiasco—the promotion end and the salvaging end. He was better at promotion than at salvaging.

All through the years following the last war, Dulles was one of the lawyers who devoutly defended the idea that American money should flow into Europe.

"It is of tremendous importance," he told the Foreign Policy Association in April, 1926, "that nothing should occur to bring about any long continued cessation in American lending to foreigners. . . . There is no reason why we, for many years to come, should not build up our investments abroad."

DEFENSE OF FOREIGN LOANS

Later in the same year, Dulles even wrote an article in the magazine Foreign Affairs emphatically disapproving of the State Department's policy of forbidding loans to pay for armaments for foreign countries. He advocated "unrestricted trade in arms and military supplies," and the right of bankers to make loans for military purposes.

Again, in 1928, he told the Foreign Policy Association:

"There is no basis for the popular belief that loans to foreign countries, totalling $11,000,000 since the war, have taken that much money out of the United States. . . . In financing and moving these surplus goods, our bankers have performed a great service, both to this country and to the world."

Even up until 1930, Dulles continued optimistic about American investments in Germany.

"Germany has made great progress under the Dawes Plan," he said on Oct. 21, 1930, "Her national income and Government income have grown to a point where the preparations charge constitutes a readily bearable percentage."

By this time, of course, reparations had been drastically scaled under the Dawes Plan, so that the loans which American bankers had poured into Germany, actually to pay those reparations, would not be in default.

In 1933, Dulles was retained by Brown Bros.-Harriman to go to Berlin and try to salvage something out of the chaotic wreckage.

He sailed for Europe on the same ship with Albert Wiggin of the Chase National Bank. Wiggin represented the short-term creditors—the banks that had made call loans of their own money to Germany. Dulles represented the long-term creditors, the bond-holders, who had purchased German bonds in good faith from the banks.

The banks had no stake in the long-term bonds, but they had a tremendous stake in the short-term credits. In the end, the banks collected their short-term notes, but the bonds which they had passed on to the public went into default. American

DIET AND HEALTH

Facts on Diabetes

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
I RECEIVE numerous letters which say—"I have diabetes. If I diet will I ever be cured?"

Or—"I had sugar in the urine and blood. I have taken insulin and

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

the sugar is gone. Can I stop now?"

The honest answer to both these questions is—"No." They both show an entire misconception of the nature of the disease diabetes. Diabetes is a disturbance of starch or sugar nutrition. Sugar is burned in the body to furnish energy—muscular action and body heat, just as gasoline is used in an engine. The substance which sparks the sugar is insulin formed by certain glands in the pancreas.

Diabetes is a disease of these glands. When their secretion of insulin is deficient, sugar accumulates in the blood, flows off in the urine, just as choke accumulates in your automobile when the spark plugs are dirty. This can be treated either by giving insulin artificially (sparking) or reducing the starches in the diet. The improvement, however, is only temporary. The underlying condition still exists. The treatment has to be renewed daily indefinitely. The treatment though temporary is effective, and diabetes is now one of the easiest of all the chronic diseases to control.

Advantage of Control

The advantage of using this control is that if conscientiously done the sugar tolerance of any diabetic gradually stages some degree of a come back. To that extent we can speak of a cure, or partial cure.

There are two general classes of diabetes—youth and old. They need different kinds of care because the young diabetic always has a severe case and requires insulin almost daily, while the older diabetic has a more or less mild case that can be controlled in most instances by diet alone.

It is in this latter class of the middle aged, or elderly, diabetic that treatment is so gratifying that it may be said they make a partial recovery. They renew their spark plugs. They are good examples of the old saying of Dr. Osler that the way to live a long time is to acquire a chronic disease and nurse it.

Report on Patients

I have a recent report on 55 diabetic patients who under treatment improved so much, on diet alone, that they increased the ability of the body to utilize starches and sugars almost to normal.

In all cases the greatest improvement occurred when weight reduction was made. That was the real first objective of treatment. It is easy to see why weight reduction should help diabetes. If a man's insulin cells—spark plugs—can't produce enough sparking to burn sugar to furnish energy to a body which weighs 200 pounds, they may be able to do so when his body weighs only 150 pounds. If the diabetic can't replace his injured spark plugs he can reduce the size of the engine they have to service.

In performing this weight reduction the diet will necessarily be low in starches and sugars and thus perhaps by giving the insulin-forming cells a rest you allow them to stage a come back.

To this extent it may be said that diabetes is at least partially curable.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. F. F.:—My son three and a half years old fails to recognize colors. I have worked with him for hours on end but he still mixes them up. He is bright otherwise and he tells me endlessly about something that is pretty so I don't think he is color blind.

Answer: He probably is color blind nevertheless. Only males have it. The color blind person lives in a world of beauty, even though it is different from ours, so may think something is pretty. It is best to find out whether he is color blind or not, because many adjustments in life depend on it. Any oculist can tell you. Four per cent of all males are color blind.

may exert a far reaching influence on the life, its fortunes and destiny. It may be an uprooting occurrence, demanding swift and well-considered action, with decisions based on conventional rules and codes, even though the performance may be unique, novel and with employment of fresh methods and techniques out of the beaten routines. There may be public issues involved, in which initiative and bold strokes may be demanded in order to secure support from influential sources. There may be chances, gambles or extravagances, but eventually spectacular achievement and proportionate rewards. Be wise in home or friendly ties.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to find themselves in a year of the sudden, revolutionary and unpredictable, with much commotion, change, uprootings or departures from conventional and orthodox ways and means. However, any radical measures must be revised and tempered to win public or community support and approbation, lest the more conservative element withhold cooperation. Bold strokes and determined efforts, may break down private resistance and prevent estrangements. In the end good luck and success may descend "from the blue." Be kind and tactful in domestic situations. Shun excesses.

A child born on this day should have exceptional talents, skills and originality. Its genius eventually breaking down opposition if it perseveres and holds to its optimistic attitude.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

DAN WAS actually grinning in his most devil-may-care way when he went to the porch, but the grin faded. Anne and Russell were not there. The porch had a more than empty look. Going into the living room, he saw Anne's purse was gone. After a moment's hesitation he picked up the telephone and called the inn. No, Miss Wilson was not there. It occurred to him he wasn't angry, but he was hurt. Russell had done nothing more than snap at him. Anne, after spending several hours and eating with him, had gone off without so much as a word.

It was only a short stroll to Johnson's store, where people were eating ice cream on a warm night like this, but Russell and Anne were not there. He drank a soda he didn't want and wandered down the street past Mrs. Reynolds' house. The living room was lighted and he could see Mrs. Reynolds and Laura and several other people. It was almost like a party. Farther along, Jane Dorset's Town Shoppe was still open and he looked in.

Jane greeted him cheerily. "It's quite a surprise to see you," she said. "Your brother was in a while ago with Miss Wilson."

He made a joke and bought some razor blades. He wandered on to the corner of the Strand. Two shadowy figures were visible on the town wharf. He knew instinctively they were Russell and Anne, and he turned back. For the first time it seemed a long way from the Strand to his front porch, where he sank into a chair. All at once he felt tired, drained of strength. He knew he would have to talk to Russell when he came home.

After a while on the porch he went inside and up to his room, where he undressed and lay on top of his bed in pajamas. The door was open and Russell would have to pass to get to his own room. He fixed the light so it wouldn't shine in his eyes. He wanted to think clearly, but he couldn't think at all. It was crazy, but all he could do was remember where he had been in jail in California, arrested on a charge of vagrancy. He had lain on a rough bed night after night trying to think, and with absolutely no success. All he knew now was that in a way he was more helpless than he had been then. He must have dozed off, but he woke at the sound of Russell coming up the stairs. He jumped up, crying, "Russ, I want to talk to you." Russell went past to put his coat in his room. Dan followed and leaned against the open door.

"Where did you and Anne run off to?" Russell pulled off his tie without turning. "I took Miss Wilson home."

Dan laughed. "You must have gone by way of Baltimore, Philadelphia and points north. Anne didn't even say goodby."

"There was no reason for doing so."

"That's funny. I had an idea guests usually said goodby and sometimes even thanked you. Maybe that's all out of style now."

Russell turned and his eyes were angry. "It's not a joking matter. You don't seem to realize what you have done."

"But I do." Dan looked down at his bare feet. "How much did she tell you?"

"How much about what?"

"That's what I want to know." "I don't need to be told what I saw. The whole street could look in and see. You had beer bottles on the table, too, like a-a barroom."

Dan burst out laughing. "You sound like a preacher. One night I'm wrong because I pull down the shades, and the next because I don't. Anne and I weren't doing anything the whole world couldn't watch." He stopped smiling. "Any way, in the last analysis, it's nobody's business what Anne and I do."

"It's mine!" Dan felt his brain snap. "I said nobody—and that means you, too. If I want to bring Anne in to spend the night with me, that's my affair. I kind of think I will."

"Take that back!" Russell caught him by the shoulder roughly. "You dare say—"

Dan's eyes flashed. "I dare say anything I want. Let go of me. You're so proper about shades being up or down. What about you musing with Anne down on the town wharf? Don't look at me so high and mighty. I'm doing the questioning. I've got a right to know. Maybe it isn't the first time, and that's why Laura put her out."

Russell's jaw squared. "Don't say another word or you'll be sorry."

"As far as Anne goes I'll say plenty," Dan shouted. "You stay away from her."

"Go to your room! I'll settle with you in the morning!"

"Like heck you will," Dan faced him truculently. "We'll settle things right now. Anne's mine. I can hug her, kiss her, anything I want. I—"

Russell's fist shot out and caught Dan on the point of the jaw. For an instant he wobbled, then fell back through the open door and out into the hall, where he lay in a heap. Only his bare feet stuck into the room. Russell thrust them aside with his shoe and stood over him glowering.

"Get up, you little skunk, and take that back!"

There was no sign from the crumpled figure. There was no sound but a dog barking somewhere far off. Slowly Russell's hands unclenched and he knelt down and pressed his head against Dan's chest. For an instant it seemed he was dead, then he caught the reassuring heart throb.

His knees shook a little as he picked up the unconscious figure and put him on his bed. Then he stood looking down on him. Dan had never seemed so slim, so helpless. A wave of emotion swept over him. It was Dan he had struck down as an animal. It was Dan he had wanted to beat and batter. It was such a few days since his heart leaped up at sight of Dan standing in the doorway looking at him.

He choked down the lump in his throat and went out, closing the door softly. Once back in his own room he put on his tie and coat again. It took some time, because his fingers were trembling. Then he went downstairs and out to his car. Looking back at the house, he saw he'd left his own light burning as well as Dan's, but he didn't go back. He couldn't. He couldn't face Dan again until he'd thought things through. Tomorrow or next day they would be able to talk quietly and arrange something. If Dan loved Anne . . .

He didn't let his thoughts run on. He drove hard along the road out of town. He felt sick at heart. He must think of something.

PURPOSES OF RUFFING

YOU USUALLY ruff a trick in the dummy, when you are the declarer, for the purpose of getting rid of a losing card in some other suit. There are times, however, when ruffing is done with a different object in view. One of these can be elimination of cards in preparation for a lead-throwing end-play. Another is the canceling of high cards held by the defenders, to set up your own length. A very wise purpose is gaining entry to the dummy for a finesse, to play high cards there and get discards, and for any other reason why you require an entry.

West got the high 8 from East on his heart K lead, so repeated with the 10, which East overtook with the A, so he could fire back his spade 5.

South took a quick look at that card, counted up and saw that nine trumps were on his side, and played the Q. He had learned that, when four trumps are out against you, the best chance to catch a K is by finessing. This time was the exception, however. The finesse did not work. West won with the K and returned the spade 2. Now the dummy was dealer than a dornail. South had no way to get rid of his two low clubs, so lost two tricks in that suit at the end and was down two.

Not very intense study should have been required for South to see that the trump finesse was unimportant to him, but that getting rid of his clubs was vital. Had he reckoned thus, his course was to use his A on the spade lead from East, then take two club tops and ruff a club in dummy with the one remaining trump there. That would have enabled him to use a diamond for discard of his last club, making his contract safe.

Attacks on PAC Lessen
Its Value to Democrats

Army-Navy Pearl Harbor
Probe Nears Conclusion

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—There are gathering signs that Sidney Hillman's domination of the CIO Political Action committee is becoming "less than an asset" to President Roosevelt's fourth term campaign.

Political observers are pointing to the results of the Maine elections, in which the PAC took a terrific beating—a much worse one than the Republicans had predicted. Of course, nobody seriously expected Maine to go Democratic, but New Deal stalwarts predicted a much closer election, and the poor showing of the PAC has been like "a shot in the arm" to Thomas E. Dewey and the entire GOP.

Hillman
Creates Antagonism

Hillman's recent appearance before the House campaign funds committee aroused further antagonism to him among Republicans and conservative Democrats, as well as in that huge segment of labor dominated by the AFL.

The "Hillman issue" is fast developing into one of the battlegrounds of the campaign. Charges by the Democrats that the GOP is bringing the racial issue into the political arena are falling on deaf ears among coalition Republicans and "States' rights" Democrats from the South.

The hue and cry over Hillman, observers believe, may force the administration to make some statement about him and the PAC—perhaps to the effect that, after all, the PAC is backing the candidate of its choice and has no close tie in with the Democrats.

But Hillman will remain at the helm of the committee—and nothing will induce him to step down.

THE THREE-MONTH INVESTIGATION of the Pearl Harbor disaster by Army-Navy boards of inquiry is reported nearing its close.

The two boards, composed of high-ranking officers, have been hearing witnesses in Washington and Honolulu in compliance with a resolution adopted by Congress last June.

Senator Homer Ferguson (R) of Michigan, sponsor of the resolution, said he is awaiting completion of the dual probes and the findings of the War and Navy departments before taking action on a new resolution which he has in mind.

"I'm going to give them a reasonable length of time in which to complete their investigation and make their reports," said Ferguson, "before deciding whether to introduce a resolution for a Congressional investigation. I understand they will be through at Honolulu in a few days."

Ferguson indicated that if he was not satisfied with the report or if the investigation continued to drag he would introduce his resolution in the Senate, perhaps with the support of Senator A. B. Chandler (D) of Kentucky, influential member of the House military affairs committee.

JUST BECAUSE GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR has been picked to direct the anticipated Philippine campaign doesn't mean the Navy and its Pacific fleet chief, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, will take a back seat in the overall war to crush Japan.

Early this year Nimitz declared in a speech that the strategy of the Pacific war was to drive westward to the China coast to obtain adequate bases for crushing air blows against the Japanese.

Undoubtedly Nimitz, with his growing army of seasoned Marine assault troops, will play a major role in the next big drive after the Philippine campaign gets under way. MacArthur and his forces still may be fighting in the Philippines when other amphibious forces move in the direction of China.

Nimitz hinted at such a drive in his speech to the American Legion convention at Chicago when he said that Allied campaigns were coordinated to keep the enemy off balance.

And Nimitz also warned that the toughest fighting will come when Allied forces meet the main body of the Jap army, and that main body has been overrunning China for years and should be prepared for defensive fighting.

Military analysts believe that the Philippine campaign will be merely a beginning of the real all-out drive to smash the military might of the Rising Sun Empire.

Eyestrain time is here!

School has started. That means home work at night and more use of our eyes—more eye strain. So while you are studying, reading or playing games, remember to guard your eyes from strain with the simple steps like these below.

How to help your eyes and avoid wasting light

Clean bulbs and bowls often! Make full use of light you have!

Dust and dirt steal more light than you think. Wipe bulbs and reflectors with a damp cloth and you'll get as much as 25 to 30% more light.

Use shades with white linings! Dark lamp shades or shades turned yellow inside rob your eyes of light... may cut down light as much as 50%. Clean or brush shades regularly; if they're too bad, replace with fresh ones.

By arranging furniture and lamps carefully, you can often make one lamp serve two or more people effectively. But be sure it isn't too far away from either! A difference of 12 inches can reduce the light you get by as much as 50%.

DETROIT STARS EXPERTS CLAIM TIE HILL MARK TIGERS ARE IN

Newhouse, Trout Have Now Won 55 Games To Equal 25-Year-Old Record

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—One of baseball's most durable records finally has been equalled by Hal Newhouse and Dizzy Trout in their spectacular effort to hurl the Detroit Tigers to the American League pennant. For a quarter of a century the standard of 55 games won by two hurlers on any one team had stood off the best performances of some of the best hurlers baseball has seen. Then Wednesday it was tied when Newhouse shut out the Athletics and again put the pressure on the tenacious Browns.

That was Newhouse's 28th win of the year and coupled with Trout's 27 tied the old mark set by Jim Bagby and Stan Coveleskie when they hurled the Cleveland Indians to the league championship in 1920.

Dizzy Dean piled up 31 victories for the 1934 St. Louis Cardinals and he and brother Paul, or Daffy, approached the standard, only to falter where all others had before and where succeeding ones failed too until now. Lefty Gomez and Red Ruffing of the Yankees, Walter Johnson and Stan Coveleskie, then teamed up as the Washington team, Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters of the Reds, Schoolboy Rowe and Tommy Bridges of the Tigers knocked at the door of the mark in their big years, but never quite made it.

Before this last week of the baseball season finally is over Newhouse and Trout probably will contrive to shatter that old record. One or both of them should win again before the end arrives, and establish a new mark that may never be bettered. In fact, Manager Steve O'Neill has announced that each will hurl one more game in the series with the Senators.

Incidentally, there was a little side wish of personal drama in that game the Tigers won from the A's yesterday.

Lefty Newhouse was opposed on the mound by old Buck Newson, who was beaten by that 4 to 0 score for his 15th loss of the season.

As old Buck trudged back and forth from pitcher's box to dugout he must have thought a thousand times of the way it used to be back in 1940 when he won 21 against five defeats for those Tigers and hurled them to the pennant as Newhouse is helping to do now.

The following season Newson lost 20 games, was cast adrift and beat his way around the majors from one club to another until he landed with the A's and yesterday at the scene of his great triumphs was merely the victim of the club he once topped as standout star.

In 1940 when old Buck was enjoying his greatest season, Newhouse won nine and lost nine and Trout won three and lost seven, playing as his teammates. They are about the best in the business now and old Buck can't buy his way into the win column.

Jerusalem had been in Moslem hands since 1244 A. D., until Field Marshal Allenby brought about its surrender in 1917. It had been under the rule of Turkey since 1517.

Defeat Of Athletics While Browns Lose To Red Sox Puts Detroit Ahead

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Lady Luck, the weather man and young Joe Wood of the Red Sox all conspired against the poor Browns Wednesday and so today the St. Louis hopefuls find themselves one game behind the rampant Tigers and with only four games left to play.

The disillusioned Browns now must face the Yanks in four games while the Tigers are maeing the hopeless Senators in four and it will be something of a miracle if the Browns can win with the cards stacked against them like that.

The Yanks are two games back of the Browns and with a chance at that second place World Series dough, they are going to be awful tough for the Browns to handle. The Senators, on the other hand, have nothing to look forward to except a vacation and the sooner they get it the better.

The Browns were to have played their last game with the Red Sox in the afternoon but the weather man stepped in with a down-pour and Joe Cronin kindly consented to stay over and play at night. But by that time the Browns learned that Hal Newhouse had turned in a five-hit, 4-0, shut-out over the Athletics for his 28th victory and the pressure was again on the Browns.

Then Joe Wood stepped out and pitched the game of his life to make life miserable for the Browns and their loyal supporters. He gave them only four hits while the Red Sox unloaded on Gaehouse for a 4-1 decision.

The Yanks pounded out a 7-2 verdict over the White Sox with Floyd Bevens, a second-stringer in action, and now have their first stringers fresh and ready to shoot at the Browns. It certainly doesn't look very hopeful for the Browns.

The Senators wound up their season's hostilities with the Indians by losing 6-4.

The Cardinals looked bad losing to the Dodgers, 3-2, and if they don't pull themselves together pretty soon they'll have their hands full trying to beat the Tigers in the World Series. They could do nothing with Clyde King, a 19 year old rookie from North Carolina University and they made four atrocious errors. Maybe they're getting all their bad baseball out of their systems now rather than next week.

The Pirates dropped one to the Braves 4-3 and are now only two games ahead of the steady-going Reds who again trimmed the Giants, 8-1, for Bucky Walters' 23rd victory. Bill Voiselle, Giant ace, was shooting for his 22nd triumph but Steve Mesner's homer with the bases loaded in the first squashed Bill's hopes. He has yet to beat the Reds a single game.

The Cubs came from behind to beat the Phils, 5-3, in 11 innings, thus miring the Phils more deeply in last place.

"My Shadow," by Robert Louis Stevenson, is said to be "the most popular short poem extant."

WHAT TIME IS IT? GUESSING GAME RETURNS

Clocks To Be Turned Back An Hour In Middle Of Saturday Night

Semi-annual guessing game on the subject of the time is on again and will reach its climax this weekend.

At one minute past midnight Saturday Cincinnati will again officially adopt Eastern Standard as official instead of Eastern war-time which has been used during the Summer months. Most other cities in Ohio also will revert to the slow time.

Confusion and the puzzling question, "what time is it?" started last weekend when several communities moved clocks back. Cleveland, Cincinnati and some smaller communities switched their clocks back last Sunday.

Cincinnati will change the same day as its neighbors go back. Columbus, Chillicothe, Washington C. H., Zanesville, Findlay, Fostoria, Fremont, Massillon, Marietta, Mt. Vernon, St. Marys, Wilmington, Toledo and others move clocks back next Sunday. Several other cities will not change until October 7 or 8.

Only a few cities will remain on war time throughout the Winter. Included in this group are East Liverpool, Bellaire, Martins Ferry and Conneaut.

While local affairs will be conducted on the new slow time, railroads and interstate buses will remain on fast time.

Postmaster A. Hulse Hays said Thursday the postoffice will remain on fast time because of trains and buses operating on war time. Some changes in hours of offices are open and in carrier delivery may be made to accommodate business houses. Persons who send mail are reminded they must get it to the postoffice sooner to meet trains and buses.

No concerted plans have been announced by merchants. Many of the stores will maintain the same hours they have at present, simply moving back their clocks.

City schools will maintain the same hours as at present, starting at 9 a. m. Most county schools intend to follow the same plan.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

ONE MINUTE PULPIT
Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.
—St. Matthew 6:21.

Staff Sergeant W. J. Lewis, of the U. S. Army Air Base, Lockbourne, is recovering in the base hospital after amputation of a finger on his left hand, injured in a recent accident at the base. He is the husband of the former Eileen Kirby, of Folsom avenue.
